Crouse Receives Early Endorsement from the AEA

TEMPE, Ariz. – Angie Crouse, candidate for the Arizona House of Representatives in LD-17, has received an early endorsement from the Arizona Education Association. Crouse is one of only two candidates endorsed in the four-way primary.

“I am elated to receive the early endorsement from the Arizona Education Association. As a product of public schools, I embrace the value and importance of providing a quality education for all students in Arizona. Once elected, I will work to raise teacher salaries, improve conditions at our schools, and increase availability to student aid at our universities.”

John Wright, President of the Arizona Education Association states, "Angie Crouse knows what our schools need and is committed to working with teachers, school employees and parents to ensure a great public school for every Arizona child."

The endorsement from the AEA represents more than 34,000 members in Arizona. The AEA is a leader in advocating for support of Arizona's public schools, improving the quality of public education through positive change, and improving the professional lives of teachers and school staff members. AEA members are teachers, community college professors, counselors, speech pathologists, bus drivers, secretaries, retired educators and student teachers and they belong to more than 150 local affiliates across Arizona.

Crouse has also received early endorsements from the Arizona AFL-CIO, American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME), Arizona List, an organization that supports pro-choice women candidates in Arizona, and from Democracy for America – Maricopa County (DFA-MC), a grassroots organization committed to supporting progressive candidates.

Angie Crouse, 36, lives in Tempe and is a researcher who works with authors who write politically-based books.
